DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The second house south of Fourth Street on the east side of George Street is a two bay wide, two story frame structure, with two bay, two story wing. On the Street is a one story early twentieth century leanto porch supported on turned posts and having pierced brackets. The sides of the leanto, above the screening, have vertical roofers cut in saw tooth fashion along the bottom. The ends of the rafters are also exposed and finished in a ogee. German siding covers the facade and the windows on both storys have 6/6 sash and no shutters. The entrance is located on the south side of the porch and the door to the house is adjacent the corner of the dwelling. Along all sides of the roof and gable is a scoloped bargeboard, like the barge on the third house south, as well as the little building on the canal at the northern end of Bohemia Avenue. The sides of this building are board and batten, except the end bay which is covered with plain weatherboard. A small, but bold chimney rises from the north side of the raised seam tin covered 'A' roof. On the south side of the wing, in typical mid-19th century fashion, there is a simple leanto porch with an enclosed leanto on the second story for a bath.

Between this property and the house adjoining are two types of picket fence.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Architecturally, the Reeves House is a well maintained dwelling with vernacular form and features typical of the fourth quarter of the nineteenth century. Its board and batten siding and scalloped barge boards are very good details of the period.

Sarah Whiteoak and her husband George probably had this house built in 1904. Its significance lies in its unusually neat appearance and good maintenance. Like the other houses on this block, it is on the street in front but has a large yard in back facing an alley.
